

19th Century Putnam, Connecticut Cancellations Census

Putting together a census of Putnam, Connecticut, 19th Century cancellations is made difficult by the fact that so few of the items are actually year dated. When we find at least one in five examples of a single kind of cancel year dated, we can surmise that they are in all likelihood all from the same year. But, there are many Putnam cancels that are one of a kind and not year dated. For those we are reduced to judge from the postmark type, stamp, and style of cancel. We begin after July 25, 1860, when it became a requirement that stamps be obliterated by a mark other than the town date stamp. Where decent graphics were unavailable tracings were used. A useful chart of postmark types and their periods of use follows on the next page.

This nascent census is awaiting new information from philatelists who are willing to help to improve its accuracy. We are handing this project over to the USCC members to refine. It would be a marvelous time to also expand the effort to include 20th Century cancellations.
